Nicky trained for his ACA qualification and then went on to become an Actor. On becoming a parent he then realised that he needed a more stable form of income and reverted back to his accountancy knowledge where he became a peripatetic accountant with various clients. With his broad knowledge and experience of working in various service industries he has been able to apply his skills and expertise to David Morley Architects starting at one day a week and now working a 4 day week for the practice. He is ensuring that the partnership is moving with the times financially and has a keen eye for profitability.
